Table 1: Make information about the services and housing and how to access them more respectful and easier to understand

Themes

1. Develop tools like video and/or visual aids to explain CES process
2. Educate community partners who can be ambassadors (eg, librarians)
3. Engage PWLE in the development of new tools
 - Video of someone going through intake/etc. **
 - Better interpretation services for CORE staff (and police) so they can communicate immediately with unhoused individuals who are monolingual speakers.*
 - Include language about the CoC's priority to find a more fair housing assessment tool in the Coordinated Entry System Policies and Procedures document.
 - Develop a more trauma-informed process and culturally competent approach and explanation for the process of accessing housing and services that centers the perspective of people with lived experience of homelessness and provides accurate information about what to expect.
 - Use visual tools instead of just words/text that clearly illustrate the process steps, eligibility, etc. And share them with clients AND staff so we are all looking at the same thing (literally starting on the same page)
 - Make it a norm for People with Lived Experience to share stories, art, ideas in meetings, get reimbursed etc. Positive feedback loop- PWLE creates the media that is culturally connected/familiar/appropriate for people seeking services.
 - Tenants may not be literate- assistance for people applying
 - Trauma informed care!
 - Include equity in all conversations/parts of our system
 - Use your wonderful local librarians as resources to reach lower literacy individuals!

Table 2: Need to increase affordable housing and make renting from local landlords easier

Themes

1. Identify ways to make it easier for landlords (incentives, stock forms/training, additional services)
2. Empower PWLE to advocate at local and state level

3. Media/marketing campaign to landlords

- Campaign to "get out the vote" among people experiencing homelessness. Identify candidates who care about housing. *
- Include wraparound services to housing.*
- Create and/or strengthen landlord network and provide incentives to engage and retain landlords to increase housing availability.
- Can we create one portal for people to submit their info, be checked out, and be automatically put on waiting lists or "approved" for housing when the next unit comes up?
- Landlords talk to each other! If a landlord has a bad experience with a client in one of our programs, they are likely to talk to other landlords about that.
- What are the touch points with local landlords? In what ways do we communicate?
- Possibly have flexible money to backfill as security net for landlords if big damage/money loss.
- Pre, during, and post data that collects information on how the caseworker is truly connecting and supporting the now formerly unhoused who has housing, so the daily support needed doesn't fall on the landlord.
- Advocate at local, state, and federal level for more flexible income verification processes so landlords can rent to people with benefits without worrying about losing subsidy
- strengthen COH connection to landlords
- Resources to support someone in housing even if not in program anymore
- More tiny houses. There are entities that want to host tiny house villages that have not been able to do so because of NIMBY and govt red tape. Can we market success stories?
- Landlord recruitment media campaign- state level? Want to help with homelessness? Have landlords who rent to our clients be featured
- offer templates and tools for landlords who may be new to this. Ex. lease templates, pet agreements, etc.
- Supporting clients/potential tenants with low literacy navigate the process to apply for housing
- Like Uber offers people help to buy a car to work for the company. State could help people purchase houses to rent to people who need housing
- Review documents and forms from the County and Cities to ensure they have appropriate reading levels
- Landlord could be compensated additionally for renting to someone experiencing homelessness

Table 3: Data about inequities not used in decision making enough

Themes:

1. Tell stories with the data- what current state is, what big picture regionally is, how these inequities came to exist in the U.S.
2. Use qualitative data/stories to help provide context for quantitative
 - Break down race/ethnicity in data collection. ie. not everyone identifies as hispanic/latino/Native American. Indigenous needs to be a category. Identifying with you home country is also important, if not USA. *

- Use race/ethnicity data and qualitative data (focus groups, personal stories) to make more informed decision and plans. *
- Ensure equity champions are strategically positioned in decision-making roles/groups.*
- Look at regional data and how gentrification shifts have impacted disparities. **
- Share historical data as well as current system data that paints the systemic picture of how we got to our current inequities. *
- Create a group empowered to make decisions and lift recommendations to advance racial equity.
- Set goals within the CoC strategic plan to decrease racial/ethnic disparities in access and outcomes.
- Examine data by race and ethnicity and the intersection with other identities (gender, sexual orientation, family structure, age) to see where the greatest inequities are.
- How get feedback from people with lived experience more quickly and USE it more quickly?
- Look at provider and government data to understand discrepancies in representation of those who manage resources and those that need them.
- What does equity look/sound/feel like? How will we know equity is happening?
- data that helps dispel myths.
- Missing quantitative data on certain pops (gender/sexual orientation identity, for example) so how get qualitative data
- Inequities show up at all levels of government and society. It's also what is directly happening to you, and how you felt that incident made you feel.
- collecting/communicating in the way the individual is communicating with us.
- Who controls the narrative?
- Media has an opportunity to help
- Advocate to local, state, and federal funders to ensure required data collection is trauma informed
- Use data across systems (like CPS, probation) to assess vulnerabilities rather than forcing people to disclose trauma
- Guaranteed income- 100 pilot programs. Do we use our data to advocate for something like that?

Table 4: Need to create better ways to hear from and engage People With a Lived Experience (PWLE) of homelessness in decision making

Themes

1. Look at agencies already doing this work for ideas (REP Program at Hope Solutions, Youth Action Council with H3, H3 including PWLE in hiring decisions)
2. Compensation needs to be flexible
3. Need to dedicate resources to provide training/support
 - Identify staff and funding to roll out the “Contra Costa Building Authentic Partnerships with People with Lived Experience of Homelessness” plan to engage People With Lived Experience (PWLE).

- Find staff and funding to support a variety of ways to honor, include and compensate PWLE engaging in decision making processes by reducing barriers to participation (e.g. stipends, access to technology, transportation to meetings, etc.).
- Conduct ongoing listening sessions to ensure getting input from PWLE.
- How does homelessness as a crisis make someone feel and how tap into strengths- people feel better when they're working- figure out what their skills are, compensate them
- Provide menu of incentives. Not everyone wants a safeway gift card
- Compensation: childcare, gas card, not just $
- Provide authentic supports and training so barriers to entry and perception of professionalization don't discourage people from participating
- Offer advocacy training to PWLE
- REP engages PWLE on advocacy, but not program design at this point
- Advocate to federal and state partners so PWLE can be compensated without being concerned about losing access to their benefits
- Many well educated people, writers, etc that can help tell/shape the stories
- we incentivize unhoused residents to participate in advocacy at the city level with gift cards because we value their time
- I think that we need PWLE on many different county commissions, including planning, library, arts & culture, etc. - do not confine to "issues of homelessness"
- we have also taught residents to read contracts of service providers and to scrutinize the budget. then we go to city Council to fight for what they have promised
- Look at YAC: opportunity for mentorship and personal development. This program/model works! *
- mentorship is the norm in the creative arts field and helping others find their voice. we need to apply this lens and these tools to political and social justice advocacy
- Have more listening sessions in more places over a meal. Like the investment companies' offer of a free lunch if you listen to their spiel.
- Have PWLE in hiring processes for providers
