

Health savings account (HSA)

Take advantage of triple tax savings

With a health savings account, you can take advantage of tax-free contributions, earnings and interest, and withdrawals for your qualified health care costs.¹

How your HSA works

Once you've enrolled in the HSA-qualified plan, you can open an HSA through your employer and save on taxes in 3 ways:

1. You can make pre-tax contributions to your HSA through your payroll.²
2. The money in your account will earn interest on a tax-free basis.
3. You can use tax-free dollars from your HSA to pay for care for both you and your dependents.

Qualified health care costs that you can pay for with HSA dollars include:³

- Doctor and hospital visits
- Primary and specialty care visits
- Prescription drugs
- X-rays and lab tests
- Vision and dental care

Health payment card – Your HSA comes with a convenient debit card that saves you time and paperwork.

Monthly fee – There is a $3.25 fee for your HSA. This is waived when your account balance reaches $2,000.

No hidden fees – No transaction or yearly debit card fees.

Mutual fund investment – You have the option to invest money from your HSA once your account reaches $2,000. You can choose to invest amounts above $2,000 in your HSA into a selection of mutual fund options.

Getting started is simple

¹Enrollment in an HSA-qualified high deductible health plan is just one of the HSA eligibility rules. Some other rules include that you may not be (1) covered by some other health coverage plan that is not also an HSA-compatible plan, with certain exceptions; (2) enrolled in any portion of Medicare; or (3) able to be claimed as a dependent on another person's tax return. Most health reimbursement arrangements and flexible spending accounts provided through an employer are considered another health coverage plan for HSA purposes and will make you ineligible for an HSA. Contact your employer for more information.

²In 2018, the maximum amount the IRS allows you to contribute to your HSA is $3,450 for self-only coverage and $6,900 for family coverage, plus an additional contribution of $1,000 for those 55 and older. The tax references in this document relate to federal income tax only. Consult with a qualified professional for tax, investment, or legal advice.
